There was a slight fall in Consolidated Gas stock, owing to an absurd assertion in a morning paper yesterday that the company is organized upon a plan similar to that of the Chicago Gas Trust, and is open to similar legal attacks. It is hardly necessary to inform most of our readers that the Consolidated Gas Company is simply an independent corporation, holding no stocks of other companies, and not in the least affected by the rule of law laid down in the Chicago case.

The company's net earnings for 1888 and 1889 have been paying sufficient to meet its fixed charges, and there is no prospect of an immediate increase. In view of the St. Louis and there is no prospect of an immediate increase.

In view of the earnings of the St. Louis and San Francisco road and the necessity that has compelled the Atchison and the Missouri. Kansas and Texas companies to readjust their obligations upon a 4 per cent. basis, the desire of the stockholders of the Missouri Pacific company for information as to its earnings and actual financial condition is entirely natural. Current rumors are that the company's earnings are showing handsome gains over last year. They might do so and still fall short of earning the dividends that are paid upon the stock. The constant decline in the price of the stock intensifies the desire of the holders to get at the facts which the management persistently keeps from the public.

Washington advices indicate that there is some basis for the reports. The subject is unquestionably being discussed by Mr. Harrison and his advisers, who, it is understood, feel that they cannot afford to have Congress convene without making some show tion obtainable is that the Administration has advisement the proposition credited to ft in this column on Sunday, Oct. 17, namely to issue a circular to the depository banks notifying them that, at the expiration of thirty or sixty days from the date of the notice, they will be required to pay into the Treasury 10 It is quite likely that this action will result in heavy sales to the Government of the bonds held to secure those deposits. Should that be the case, the unfavorable effect of calling the deposits would be promptly offset. In fact, if it should result in forcing into the Treasury practically all of the bonds held against deposits, the money market would be placed at once upon a much more substantial basis than at present, while Mr. Windom would gain credit for great sagacity. The element of uncertainty in this calculation is the amount of borrowed bonds the banks are using to secure the Government deposits with them. It is quite possible, though, that the borrowed bonds would be forced into the Treasury along with the others, since the inducements to hold obligations of the Government have been very decidedly lessened by the action of the Administration in constantly cheapening their market value.
